 Tips on English learning:

- ◎ To separate our ideas to several parts in an article, we usually give heading / section heads or titles / subtitles / section titles. There are different ways to show the titles. The most important thing is to be clear and concise!

- ◎ Here are some ways to show your titles:

Template 1: One word with the same part of speech, eg. nouns / adjectives / adverbs, etc.

Template 2: Phrases of the same part of speech.

Do you have good study habits? Do you find it hard to concentrate on your homework? Do you get to class and not remember anything of what you studied the night before? If so, here are some tips to help your study:

 Tip 1: Set a time to study.

Many kids find it easiest to come home, have something to eat, and then study right away, but if you have other activities at that time you'll need to find what works for you.

 Tip 2: Study every day.

If you don't have homework to do, take a few minutes to review topics that you find hardest. This may sound boring, but it's good to get into the habit of doing it every day.

 Tip 3: Create your own study space.

If you don't have a desk in your room, or if your family is not quiet enough, think of going to the library.

 Tip 4: Don't do other things when you are studying.

Watching TV, fixing a snack, and talking on the phone distract you. Some people study with music playing. If it's just quieter music and doesn't make you play the drums on your books, it's probably not too distracting.

 Tip 5: Take notes.

If you have a lot of reading to do to prepare for a test, try taking notes. If not, you'll feel crazy.

Finally, ask for help if you need it. Teachers and friends will usually go over something with you again if you didn't quite "get it" the first time.

🕒 Here is your turn to do the outline. List what the author did or will do in order.

I am very interested in animal study. Last summer, I went to Alishan for a study on snakes. I was so excited to see many different kinds of snakes crawling in the forest. They lived well in the nature. This year, a magazine said Pygmy Seahorses showed up in the sea of Kenting. It is very difficult to see them. To fulfill my dream, I invited my friends to go looking for them. We were very lucky to see a group of little pink seahorses swimming away. The next day, we also went cycling around Kenting and watched the beautiful sunset. Today, I plan the next trip through Yangmingshan for animal study because spring is coming. I'll go bird watching.
