My Life Cycle

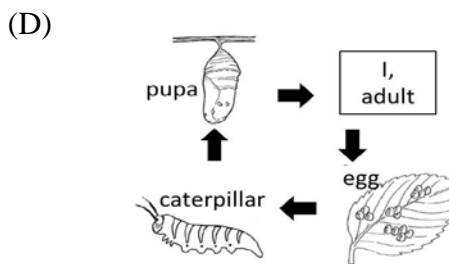

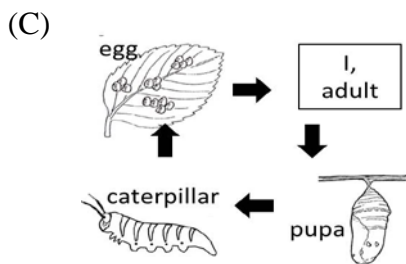

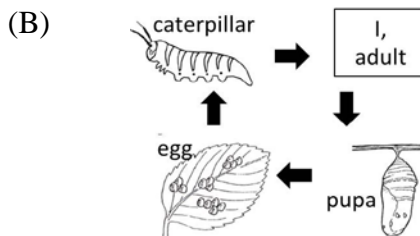

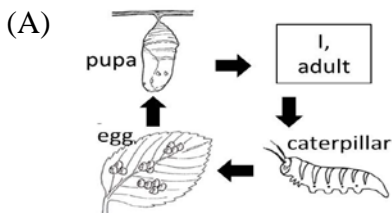

Hi, my name is Beauty because there are many different colors on my body. I can fly in the sky, and people like to watch me fly and dance among flowers. It is the most beautiful picture in the world. In fact, I was not that beautiful before. I have to go through four stages, changing four different shapes: the egg, the caterpillar, the pupa, and the adult. The adult is the last stage, and I become beautiful. That also means I am going to the end of my life after I lay eggs. Guess! Who am I ?

Dear Susan:

June 8, 2011

Today is our third day in Tokyo. There are many wonderful places to see. We were at the Asakusa Kannon Temple the day before yesterday. There were many people around, but I don't like that crowded place. In the evening, Dad and I went to Tokyo Tower to see its beautiful night view, but Mom was in the hotel for taking a hot spring bath.

Yesterday was a rainy day; we were in a big and modern shopping mall, Omotesando Hills. Mom was very crazy about everything there, but they were too expensive. Dad was regretful to take her there, so he pushed us into a fine restaurant for having some cakes and drinks. They were also very expensive, but they are really delicious. After that, Mom was quiet.

Today, it keeps rainy, and we don't go out. But we can take exercise and play games in the gym of the hotel. We still have fun here. By the way, do you like any gift from Japan? Email me and tell me. We plan to go home at night on 10th.
